

Hi, I'm Giovanna

I'm a VP at Guy Carpenter and Team Leader for the premiums and claims administration for Argentina and Mexico's operations. During the last year, I have been working on the standardization of CSS processes in preparation for the Open Twins migration in 2020. I studied Actuary at Universidad Nacional Autonoma de Mexico and currently I'm pursuing a new degree in Sales and Commercialization at Universidad del Valle de Mexico. I started my professional experience when I joined Seguros Comercial America in 1998, then I worked at Odyssey Re, and finally I joined Guy Carpenter almost seven years ago.

Who is a woman that inspires you?

Many women inspire me but my main inspiration is my mom, who is a strong and wise woman. She worked alongside my father to provide for me and my brother. I also admire my female colleagues that split their time both succeeding in the corporate world and in their role as mothers. I also admire women like myself who have decided not to become mothers. We are all succeeding in other aspects of our lives while still fighting for gender equity.

When I'm not at work I'm most happy...

Traveling to new places, being in the nature, walking outside, and swimming. I love experiencing the wonders that nature creates, like glaciers, canyons, and waterfalls. It is amazing to see their striking beauty.

What advice do you have for those starting their career?

There are always new things to learn -- don't stop learning. Create your own path and let the new experiences nourish you. And don't forget to share your knowledge with the rest.

What has changed since you started at Guy Carpenter ?

GC has changed a lot! My team and my activities are part of that. System-wise, we have migrated once already a few years back, and now we are moving to Open Twins, which helps me keep up with new challenges, and continue to prepare for the new opportunities and experiences to come.
